Letter From the Author

Dear Book Club Coordinator,

Thank you so much for taking the time to read the many selections on An Open Book. I hope that the information in my letter helps make your choice for your book club easier.

I have been writing since 2014 after I made a New Year's resolution to finally finish a book. Since then, I have written over twenty books and seen them published either independently or traditionally. The Love Script is my twenty-eighth novel, and one that was a pure joy to write.

I paired my love for romantic comedy movies with the love of all things Hollywood. The Love Script is filled with humor, witty banter, romance, and an exploration of what it means to live your faith.

With a California setting—thanks to research and time spent talking to natives and transplants—The Love Script has a big-city feel with a small-town atmosphere thanks to a select cast of secondary characters. I also enjoyed adding some pop culture references throughout the book as a nod to the hero's occupation and the heroine's love of movies.

Though the cover hints at a fun-loving read, the issues discussed between the pages have depth. The characters discuss their faith when medical crises arise, as well as how to know when a church is the right fit for you. There's also themes of perception vs. reality, cancel culture, and the importance of family.

I hope you enjoy Nevaeh and Lamont's journey. If you'd like me to take part in your book club's discussion, please fill out the "Request an Author Teleconference" form under "Resources" on the Open Book website:

Discussion Questions

1. Nevaeh doesn't attend church but still considers herself a Christian. Could you relate to her struggle to find a church home? Why or why not?
2. Cancel culture is something that has gained momentum in recent years. Did what Nevaeh and Lamont go through change your opinion on the culture in any way? Do you believe second chances are warranted to those in the spotlight?
3. Lamont is gripped by fear when it comes to his mother's health. Have you ever had to process a health crisis? How did your faith see you through?

4. Were there times you disagreed with Nevaeh's actions? If so, when, and what would you have done differently?

5. Lamont is used to the limelight, though he might not always love it. How do you think you would handle having your every move scrutinized?

6. The Love Script is book one in the Love in the Spotlight series. Books two and three will talk about Tucker Hale and Christian Gamble, respectively. What are some things you hope are addressed?

7. What surprised you most about the book? Did you feel there were any significant plot twists? If so, what were they?

8. What is the theme that impacted you the most while reading The Love Script?

9. Did this love story inspire you? Why or why not?

10. Lamont has a very close relationship with his mother while Nevaeh's relationship with her parents was strained at times. Do you think the dynamics between the two have an impact on Lamont and Nevaeh's romance? Why or why not?
